IS AN EXTRA SESSION NEEDED? The crying need of a new and just assessment of property in Maryland has moved a number of our brethren of the press to suggest that the Governor convene the legislature in special session that they may consider any views that he may submit on the question of assessment, and again take up the work of framing a suitable measure.

It has been suggested, too, that the legislature might, in the light of late developments, find some other work demanding its attention, as, for instance, the status of school commissioners, who are now in office, except in certain counties, under an unconstitutional law. and who, it is claimed, can not expect any better tenure under the new law placing their appointment uniformly in the hands of the Governor.

Against a special session of the legislature, however, it is urged that the expense entailed would be heavy, and that tax-payers had better toil along under present burdens for another two years than bear such expense.

It is urged, too, that, until the constitution is so amended as to admit of an equitable assessment bill, little could be expected beyond what the recently adjourned legislature accomplished.

This latter point may not be well taken. Bad as the constitution is in one or two particulars, some kind of an assessment law surely could be found which would be better than none for the same time would not work injustice to other classes. It could, too, be of such character as to stand legal tests, which is more than could be said of the Haves'

With no assessment law, we are not quite in the same condition as if the Governor had signed Senator Haves' The new law would have been attacked in the courts and we do not see how it could have been established as constitutional. The intelligation gence that no taxes could be laid under the new law would have been deferred until the lawyers had ceased from strife. In the meantime the months would have rolled around another legislative session and conditions would be just as they were before the last 'session. As matters stand we know, two years in advance, that there will be no assessment. unless we make special provision for it.

The question for Governor Brown to decide before calling a special session of the General Assembly is simply, will it pay? It is folly to spend two dollars to save one, but if spending one will save two, let us spend the one.

WE ARE TIRED TOO. Our Republican contemporary, the Baltimore American, publishes the fol-

"To the Editor of The American: A free trade organ in an editorial to-day referring to "Springer Bill" on woolens estimates a loss of $60 per family on account of tariff on that article.

13,000,000 Revenue from tariff $228,000,000

458,000,000 $322,000,000

"In other words, we pay on woolens three hundred and twenty-two milions. in tax-more than the entire government revenue. I get 'tired.' et 'Hrea. 'Yours, &c., "W. S. Wilson."

Yes, William, so are we and many others of your fellow citizens. It is more than tiresome that the consuming public is compelled by your party to pay the total amount necessary to run this government over and over again for the benefit of the tariff lords. The question is, when will you and yours lapse into innocuous desuetude and relieve us of that tired feeling.

It is stated that Senator Gorman' need of rest will induce his retirement from the Democratic National Committee. A press dispatch says: "To those who remember that at the St. Louis Gorman actually declined re-election to the national committee, and that he was only persuaded to reconsider by the unanimous request of Democrats representing the party at that convention, it would not be surprising if the Schator

Hon. Barnes Compton has been presiding over the deliberations of the House of Representatives and winning golden opinions. A press dispatch from Washington says: "He presides with a dignity that is natural, and passes upon all questions raised with impartiality. Not yet has there even been a suggestion of appealing from any of his rulings."

The high license law for Ellicott City will be found on the third page of THE TIMES. The other floward county local laws, inserted for the first time last week, are on the fourth page.
